AT POLI'S.

What promises to be one of the biggest weeks since the Poli Players first opened in this city, a year ago, opens Monday, when the stock company will offer the great laughing comedy, "A Stranger in a Strange Land."

The company has had many big weeks, has prosented many good comedies, but never has it offered a better comedy, and as nothing pleases half so well as comedy, this together with the fast that it comes for Thanksgiving week, with a play that will attract all classes, the ordinary number should be increased many fold.

"A Stranger in a Strange Land" will show he popular stock company at its best. It is written around the most laugable idea imaginable, and gets its best and heartiest laughs from the most natural situations. It is not farfetched, silly or burlesque comedy, but perfectly legitimate, with a consistent and clean story. It all comes through a happy-go-lucky English, uncle arranging a home-coming reception for his nephew, who has been in America attending school. It would have been all right, but the uncle got his ideas of America out of dime novels, and when the reception comes off and they try to live up to it there is one continual acream of merriment. Not the least humorous part of it is the attempt to paim off a drunken, good for nothing Indian they have found traveling with a fake medicine man as one of the wild and woolly kind totand on the frontier of the United States. He is supposed to be a hero who has saved the life of the young man after a thrilling fight on the plains, and the conspirators have a hard time making him live up to his reputation. But, in addition to this, snother friend, not knowing they have secured a real indian, is forced to impersonate a redistin, and, of course, they are unable to tell the real one from the make-helieve, and the trouble all comes to the young man, who doesn't deserve it. Then to further complicate matters a detective from Scotland Yard drops in looking for a certain party, and disguises himself as an Indian to escape detection. That makes three Indians turned loose on the unsuspecting natured loose on the unsuspecting natives, and the fun never is us up. This is only one set of complications, and there are others that keep the pot boiling continually. Nothing but specus can be predicted for this clever comedy, and seats should be secured well in advance. Already there is an exceptional advance sale, and it is growing rapidly. Seats ordered by telephone for Thankartving must the most interesting yet given by company. For the week following to company will present "The White ster."

FOETRY

THE CRUCINE OF LIFE.

funshine and shadow, blue sky and Laughter and tears, as we tread on our Ifearts that are heavy, then hearts that are light.

Eyes that are misty and eyes that are bright;

Lesses and gains in the heat of the strife.

Each in properties to round out this life.

Into the crucible stirred by the years, Go all our hopes and misgivings and fears; Giad days and sad days, our pleasures and pains.

Worries and comforts, our losses and gains;
Out of the crucible shall there not come Joy undefiled when we pour off the

Out of our sadness and angulah and Out of the travail and burdens we know, Out of the shadow that darkens the Out of the failure that tries us to-day flave you a doubt that contentment When you've purified life and discarded the scum?

Tinetured with sorrow and flavored with sights,
Moistened with tears that have flown
from your eyes,
Performed with awaetness of loves that Leave ded, leavened with failures, with griet oancified.
Sacred and sweet is the joy that must From the furnace of life when you've poured off the setum.
